A gift from my kitchen

Hi, I’m Dolly. This little book is my gift to you: two of my favorite recipes from Sweet Escape: 7 Colors, 7 Recipes, my complete book of plant-based desserts.

Both are made the way I cook every day here on Itamambuca Beach in Brazil: whole fruit, nuts and dates, with no refined sugar, no oil and no wheat flour. And both are pure flavor. I picked them for you because they are quick, they need no oven, and everyone who tastes them asks for more.

Make one this week, then tell me how it went: tag @_thetropicalbakery_ on Instagram. I would love to see it!

Day 3

RED

Tangy Red Berry Bliss Balls

Jewel-Like Treats with Cherry, Strawberry, Cranberry & Beet

WHY RED BERRIES?

Red berries are nature's little gems – vibrant, tangy, and bursting with flavor. Humans have loved and cultivated them for millennia. Archaeological evidence shows that wild strawberries, cherries, and cranberries were eaten by ancient civilizations across Europe, the Americas, and Asia. Indigenous peoples in North and South America prized cranberries and cherries for their tart flavor, high nutrient content, and preservation potential, often drying or fermenting them for winter use.

In medieval Europe, strawberries were associated with Venus, symbolizing love and beauty, while cherries were cultivated in monasteries for both culinary and medicinal purposes.

RED

Red berries are not only historically cherished but also packed with antioxidants, vitamins, and minerals that support heart health, skin radiance, and immunity. Their bright red hues signal the presence of anthocyanins, powerful compounds that fight inflammation and promote vitality.

Cherries are rich in melatonin, helping regulate sleep and recovery. Strawberries, with their natural sweetness, bring joy to every bite, while cranberries add a tangy zing and aid urinary tract health. Beet powder adds a subtle earthy sweetness, enhances color, and supports circulation and stamina.

These bliss balls are like little edible jewels – a treat that connects us to centuries of berry-loving tradition while nourishing your body today.

THE RECIPE

Makes 12–14 Balls

BASE & FILLING

1 cup almond flour

½ cup shredded coconut

½ cup fresh cherries, pitted

½ cup fresh strawberries, chopped

8 soft pitted dates

2 tbsp dried cranberries

½ tsp natural vanilla extract

1 tbsp beet powder

100 grams of freeze-dried raspberry flakes

DAY 3
RED*Instructions:

In a food processor, blend cherries, strawberries, dates, cranberries, vanilla, and beet powder until smooth.

Add almond flour and shredded coconut, pulsing until the mixture comes together into a sticky dough.

Scoop out small portions and roll into bite-sized balls.

Coat each ball with freeze-dried raspberry flakes or small chunks, pressing gently to adhere.

Chill for 30 minutes in the fridge or freezer before serving to firm up slightly.

DAY 3

HEALTH BENEFITS

Cherries: Rich in antioxidants and melatonin, supporting sleep, recovery, and anti-inflammatory effects.

Strawberries: High in vitamin C, fiber, and polyphenols for immunity, skin health, and heart support.

Cranberries: Contain proanthocyanidins that promote urinary tract health and antioxidant protection.

Beet Powder: Supports circulation, stamina, and liver health with natural nitrates and phytonutrients.

Almond Flour & Coconut: Provide healthy fats, fiber, and protein for satiety and sustained energy.

Dates: Natural sweetness with minerals, fiber, and gentle energy release.

Day 6

CARAMEL

Peanutty Banoffee Bars

A Raw, Three-Layer Treat
Bridging Brazil and Britain

DAY 6
C A R A M E L

Why Peanut and Banana?

In Brazil, peanuts (amendoim) have deep roots in Indigenous cuisine and are beloved across the country in nostalgic sweets like ‘paçoca’, ‘doce de amendoim’, and ‘pé de moleque’. These traditional treats, made by crushing roasted peanuts with sugar or ‘rapadura’ (unrefined cane sugar), are pure, earthy, and rich – the soul of Brazilian comfort food. Paçoca is still crumbled atop açaí bowls today, linking the past to the present in every bite.

When I moved to Brazil, discovering ‘paçoca’ felt like uncovering a part of myself I didn’t know I was missing. As a true sweet tooth it quickly became my favorite treat – simple yet so deeply satisfying. To make a healthier version, I quickly knew to replace the sugar with dates. And trust me, my ‘paçoca’ delivered the same sensation of sweet and rich delight I was looking for!

DAY 6
CARAMEL

Across the ocean, in Britain, the banoffee pie was born – a dreamy mix of banana, cream, and toffee. That luscious caramel sweetness inspired me to create a plant-based version that merges the tropical abundance of Brazil with the comforting richness of Europe.

The result tastes familiar yet completely new – the warmth of roasted peanuts and golden caramel evokes nostalgia, while the freshness of banana and cashew cream brings lightness and surprise. It's a dessert that feels like home, no matter where that home is.

These Peanuttty Banoffee Bars celebrate connection – the warmth of the tropics, the grounding of nuts, and the sweet nostalgia of caramel, all wrapped into one wholesome, raw, three-layered treat.

THE RECIPE

Makes 8-10 Bars

BASE LAYER

1 cup roasted unsalted peanuts

½ cup soft pitted dates

1 tsp natural vanilla extract

Instructions:

Blend peanuts, dates, and vanilla in a food processor until sticky and crumbly.

Press firmly into a parchment-lined rectangular dish to form the base layer. Set aside while preparing the next layer.

DAY 6
CARAMEL*MIDDLE BANANA-CASHEW LAYER

1 large ripe banana

½ cup cashews (soaked 4–6 hours or in hot water 15 minutes, then drained)

½ cup soft pitted dates

½ tsp cinnamon

1 tsp natural vanilla extract

Instructions:

Blend banana, cashews, dates, cinnamon, and vanilla until smooth and creamy.

Spread evenly over the peanut base layer. Chill to set slightly before adding the top layer.

DAY 6
CARAMEL*TOP CARAMEL LAYER

½ cup soft pitted dates

½ tsp vanilla extract

2–3 tbsp water (adjust for desired runny consistency)

Instructions:

Blend dates, vanilla, and water until a smooth, runny caramel sauce forms.

Pour over the middle layer, spreading evenly.

Chill for 2–3 hours or until firm enough to cut into bars.
